

INTRODUCTION TO GRANT WRITING FOR HUMANITIES AND SOCIAL SCIENCES (Beginner Seminar)

Format: Workshop Seminar (1 credit)

Course Number: GRAD 700R (Spring 2026)

Time: Select Fridays 11:00 am to 2:00 pm

Instructor: Alexander Cors, PhD (acors@emory.edu)

Syllabus: Linked here

Course Format Overview:

This one-credit seminar will teach the fundamentals of grant writing in an interdisciplinary context. No prior experience is required. This course is aimed at graduate students in the humanities and interpretative social sciences in their first or second year, or anyone in other years who are just beginning to engage with this genre.

The class will meet bi-weekly, with short writing assignments for each session. As a one-credit seminar, it is designed to have a lower workload than a regular graduate class, and therefore can be taken in addition to a regular class schedule. Please reach out to the instructor if you have any questions, or attend one of the following info sessions below.

Info sessions for interested students and advisors:

- December 4th, at 12:00pm, at the Emory Center for Digital Scholarship (3rd floor Woodruff Library)
- December 8th, at 11:00am, online via Zoom (meeting ID: 309 773 4585)